Nicole Fellouris Joins 360 BC Group, Inc. as Chief Information Security Officer

Orange, CALIF. (June 5, 2018) — 360 BC Group, Inc., an Orange County based sales, marketing and technology firm, is proud to announce that Nicole Fellouris, former CEO of the cyber-security firm Elite Development Group, has joined 360 BC Group, Inc. on a retainer basis as Chief Information Security Officer.

“Nicole has more than two decades of cyber security experience in both the public and private sector. We are delighted to welcome her to 360,” said company co-founder Ron Zayas.

In 2001, Fellouris launched Elite Development Group, a company directly responsible for direct remediation of more than 100 cyber security incidents and breaches.

In 2004, her accomplishments and contributions to the cyber security community were recognized by both federal law enforcement and intelligence agencies, resulting in a board member appointment to the Los Angeles division of Infragard (FBI/private industry organization), inclusion in the Secret Service’s Electronic Crimes Task Force, think tank participation specific to IT security-centric compliance frameworks, and appointment as a Subject Matter Expert in cyber security and cyber warfare.

In addition to achieving PhDc status in clinical neuroscience, Nicole is a graduate of both the FBI and ATF Citizen’s Academies and the FBI’s Infrastructure Liaison Officer (ILO) program, specializing in cyber counter intelligence operations and asymmetric warfare.

“With the rise in ransomware attacks and other threats to online data and private information, security has never been a more critical consideration for our public sector clients,” Ron Zayas said. “Nicole’s eminent experience and credentials in the cyber security sector will play a significant role in bolstering our commitment to security and GDPR requirements for our clients.”
